Far Cry 07/25/2020 Update:
A new patch is released today, which will solve most of the previous 1.03 problems. A big thanks to Spectre and Sidtr0us for their support in this bug testing. This is not related to the Far Cry 4 patch we release for everyone today. Instead, it's an update to a previous patch. Far Cry 2 usually does not have many problems, but with recent changes to the game's CDX format, it's a good idea to be ready with patches. After the release of patch 1.03, we found some problems with Far Cry 2 that could not be solved using just the regular patch. So, we made this update to make sure you don't have to install another patch after you've applied the 1.03 patch. Note that the update file is not always larger than the original patch file.

The size difference can range from a few bytes to several kilobytes or even megabytes. The fix for patch 1.03 will continue to be on our updates page, if there are any problems with that. Good luck and have fun! Edit: I'll add the links to download the update that fixes the Far Cry 2 CDX problem (for Windows 7 and 8 users):
Q: Finding period of a function Find the period of $f(x) = x^2(1+2x)^n$ on $[0, \infty)$ I have tried graphing this function but it was a long and tedious process. I am unsure on how to find the period though. A: If you want to approximate with a truncated Taylor series, the function could look like $f(x) = \sum_{k=0}^n x^{2k} (1+2x)^k \approx \sum_{k=0}^n x^{2k} = \frac{x^2}{1-x^2}$ This approximation is good up to the first oscillation point, and can be further improved by dividing x by $\sqrt{1+2x}$: $f(x) \approx \frac{x^2}{(1+2x)^{\frac{3}{2}}} = \frac{\sqrt{2d92ce491b}}$
