Q: Data Management tools for debugging

We have a legacy application which reads log files and data that is to be processed. Its not reliable and the application is new so its not maintained properly. When we try to debug a program, we often end up with several thousand log files to look through. Also, we could have several forms where we input new data and then input some data which is pre-filled from the log files. I was thinking of using some sort of tool to extract data from the log files, maybe either manually or via a scripting language. Then we could just import the data into our application. However, I'm not sure if this is a good idea and I'm wondering if there's an existing tool to do this. A: Perhaps you could use a search engine to find the "extract file from log file" scripts. Also, "login to database via PL/SQL" is a common need, and this is sometimes scripted by searching for those terms. Stainless steel cutlery has been around a lot longer than silverware. Dahua is one of the leading manufacturers of advanced IP camera systems in the world and is now looking to enhance the surveillance tools in its portfolio by adding Smart PSS. With Smart PSS, you can manage multiple cameras from a single monitor, share data between cameras, view live feeds and even set alerts. Smart PSS is an application that enables you to manage Dahua surveillance cameras so that you view real-time footage of several channels and receive alerts whenever suspicious activity is detected. Straightforward setup and user-friendly interface The installation is straightforward and only requires your attention when it comes to selecting the components that you would like to install. To be more precise, in case you have an NVR tool already installed on your PC, then you can skip adding it this time. You should know that the aforementioned utility allows you to define the password for accessing the application. Once you log in, you are welcomed by a rather rugged user interface that includes 2 main tabs, the Home and Add. While the Home tab enables you to manage the parameters of your cameras, the Add has the role of providing you with an easy way of adding the surveillance cameras in your system. Allows you to manage surveillance devices and set alarms You will be happy to learn that adding a new device is as simple as it gets and entails specifying a few details, such as the name, IP, SN or domain name, port, group name, and your credentials. The fastest way to configure the new device is to access the Get Info function and specifying the input and output of the video source and alarm. The highlight of the program comes from the fact that you can set alerts for various events that you want to track, like motion detection, camera masking or video loss, for example. You can define the action to be taken once the alarm is triggered by setting up a scheme. A handy tool for anyone using an advanced surveillance system. If you want to manage your Dahua surveillance system more efficiently and configure all devices easily so that you are not caught off-guard, then perhaps Smart PSS can lend you a hand.
