According to a recent study, medication abortion does not affect women's future reproductive health. Medicines used in such events are safe and approved for use in women. Recent data shows medical abortions do not result in premature birth, ectopic pregnancy, low birth weight, or miscarriage in future pregnancies that surgical abortion does. The medicines used in such procedures known as Mifepristone and Misoprostol indicated effective results in a very less time. According to women's opinion, this medicine does not harm their health. According to ACOG, having an abortion does not affect your capacity to become pregnant in the future. It also doesn't enhance the chances of pregnancy difficulties if you decide to conceive again. Even, healthcare experts also suggest you use birth control medications because there are chances you get pregnant. Experts, will also normally advise a woman to refrain from the activity for a particular period following an abortion to provide the system time to heal.

FACTORS AFFECTING LADY'S FUTURE FERTILITY

If you're having trouble related to pregnancy after an abortion, it's important to know the factors that contribute to affecting your fertility. Below mentioned are a few points that lead to fertility:

AGE

As you get older the fertility may reduce. This generally happens at age of 35.

EVERYDAY BEHAVIOURS

The lifestyle changes that happen with everyone are an important element that leads to such a situation. Smoking, drinking, and other beverages may produce a harmful result in the body which affect your fertility. This case is the same for your husband.

MEDICAL BACKGROUND

Sexually transmitted illnesses, including chlamydia or gonorrhoea, might have an impact on your fertility. Diabetes, immunological illnesses, and hormone imbalances are all examples of chronic diseases.

THE FERTILITY OF A PARTNER

The worth of a woman's sperm can affect her capacity to conceive. Even if you have previously conceived with the same partner, your husband's fertility may be affected by routine habits and aging.

there is no such data yet proven that medical abortion affects a lady's future fertility. Yet, for further details, you should know the above-mentioned elements to avoid harm to health. One can easily abort the gestation via harmless medicines, at home. Additionally, the medicine passes through your system after a few days and does not affect future pregnancies. After a medical abortion, you could become pregnant within days.
