

20 Most Affordable Apartment Dog Breeds

Emotional support dogs provide the companionship, love, and support that one needs to face the daily challenges of life. These challenges become even more difficult to deal with when individuals are suffering from a mental or physical health problem. In such conditions, emotional support dogs are an amazing support to have, as these animals are extremely intelligent and easy to train, can perform your tasks efficiently, are active and playful, and are loyal to their handlers. And provided you have an ESA letter; you are able to enjoy these benefits with greater security and accessibility.

Emotional support dogs help their handlers to deal with several mental health conditions like depression and anxiety. In an episode of depression, people often feel unmotivated to perform their due tasks and develop a melancholic mood. Emotional support dogs provide these individuals with the company they need to fight depression. Playing with your dog, petting them, and showing them affection releases useful neurochemicals in the brain, such as dopamine and serotonin, which improves their melancholic mood and gives them the energy and boost to tackle new problems. In addition to this, emotional support dogs also help individuals to deal with their anxiety that might arrive in different situations. An ESA letter from a reputable provider like realesaletter.com can help individuals obtain accommodations and protection for their emotional support animals.

For example, many individuals feel nauseated and anxious in feelings where they are alone or in a situation where they do not have a familiar face around. This makes such individuals feel like they are in control of the situation which might cause them to feel afraid. With the company of ESA dog certificates, such instances can be prevented from occurring. Emotional support dogs accompany their handlers in homes and outside, which helps them avoid any such inconvenience from occurring. Thus, emotional support animals help their handlers in countering depression and anxiety.

While emotional support dogs become quite essential for individuals with mental health problems, it can become a burden buying these animals as many individuals tend to be on a tight budget. Following is a list of 20 animals that can be bought on a tight budget, and are suitable for small living places, like apartments and rooms.

Mutt

Mutts are quite inexpensive dog breeds that can be readily bought from the market or can be adopted from the nearest shelter.

Puggle

These dogs are tiny and cute, and quite suitable for an apartment. They are also available for a low price.

Beagle

Beagles are very outgoing and playful dogs, with a little fur on their skin, which makes them easy to bathe and clean. Thus, beagles are widely adopted options for emotional support dogs.

French Bulldog

These small-sized dogs are a great option for apartments as they do not bark a lot and save lecture time from neighbors.

Pug

Pugs are also a great option for small-sized residential places. They have a laid-back personality and do not require constant outdoor walks, which saves a lot of time spent bathing and cleaning.

Chihuahua

These dogs are quite small in size and are not that expensive to buy.

ESA letters from realesaletter are legally recognized and widely accepted, making it easier for owners to travel and live with their animals without any hassle or discrimination.

Foxhound

Foxhounds are agile and active dogs. They have little to no hair on their skin and therefore require little grooming.

Rat Terrier

If you are looking for a dog that has mid-sized stature, is active and fast, and is inexpensive to buy, Rat Terrier are the dogs to buy.

Boykin Spaniel

These dogs are extremely obedient dogs and love to serve their handlers. They are a good option to have in an apartment courtesy of the medium size.

Havanese

These dogs are fluffy, small-sized, adorable dogs which are a great option to have in a small apartment.

Boston Terrier

Boston Terriers are medium-sized and inexpensive dogs. They also do not require a whole lot of bathing giving their little fur.

Dachshund

These dogs are small but quite intelligent, which makes them ideal emotional support dogs to have in your apartment.

Bichon Frise

Bichon Frise is an adorable little dog that is quite suitable for small rooms and apartments.

Manchester Terrier

These dogs are for individuals that want their apartment dogs to be agile and active, despite being inexpensive. Manchester Terrier offers that option.

Australian Terrier

These dogs are playful and curious. But their small size makes them suitable for apartments and rooms.

Basenji

Basenjis are incredibly fast, loyal, and agile dogs, and make great apartment dogs.

Border Terrier

Border Terriers are extremely energetic and lively dogs. They are also not expensive to buy, which makes them a good option for apartment residence.

Cardigan Welsh Corgi

These animals are loyal and resemble watchdogs in their demeanor, just not in size. This makes them a viable option for living in an apartment.

Maltese

Maltese are small-sized, adorable, and friendly dogs. They love to spend time with their handlers which tends to brighten up.

Toy Fox Terrier

And at last, but by no means the least, Toy Fox Terriers provide their full-hearted love and support to other handlers, all within a strict budget.

To enjoy further ease and accessibility with emotional support dogs in your residence, you should obtain an emotional support animal letter for housing, which would allow you to obtain residence in places that traditionally do not allow animals. People who have ESA letters for housing are protected by the Fair Housing Act against any discriminatory residence provision practices. With an ESA letter, the residence provider cannot discriminate against you just because you have an emotional support dog for your emotional support needs.

Useful Resources: